RTPS School Mural

I am proud to announce the completion of our major Visual Arts project this term. It has long been planned to paint a large mural that reflects our values and the influence of the indigenous history of the school. Our street art mural depicts a scene that combines the meaning of our four small schools - green Wangrah (the west wind), yellow Allunga (the sun), blue Bahlou (water) and red Orana (welcome). You will pass by this colourful mural on the brick wall near the lower car park on your way into school. The project was realised through the efforts of Rachel Brown, Annex Art Coordinator DEC and Claire Nakazawa, a renowned artist respected for her impressive Street Art skills.

Claire and Rachel inspired the students to design the simple yet effective stencil patterns and guided them in the use of spray paints to create the overall scene. The students’ genuine enthusiasm and tremendous pride in this project was outstanding and it was a joy to see them work cooperatively and easily together. The warmth and respect they extended to both Claire and Rachel was noted and very much appreciated throughout the day.

Many thanks go to the following Stage 3 students for the contribution to the creation of our school mural: Nathan Allen, Anthony Amador, Iqra Butt, Adam Cefai, Gabriel Correa, Maddison Cradduck, Daniel Datcu, Mena Encarnacion, Jarrod Evans, Emma Farrawell, Mohammed Fauwez, Maddison Fowler, Jack Giles, Joshua Halls, Farah Fazia Haroon, Joshua James, Trent Johnson, Gunni Kapur, Hollie Keatings O’Keefe, Joshua Mining, Jacob Murphy, Jaya Newman, Hayley Nolan, Lachlan O’Neill, Connor O’Sullivan, Kaylyn Pearce, Olivia Pearsall-Hogden, Sara Popovska, Georgia Potter, Macaria Read, Elahna Rodgers, Paige Rodman, Jackson Sadler, Anoushka Salian, Mia Sanders, Emerson Schuster, Ella Smith, Phitinun (Tina) Tanasuwatgul, Elyssa Testa, Leyla Tupkovic, Amelia Vieira, Tiana Willoughby and Isabel Woodside.
